CHINA TO WITNESS ANNULAR SOLAR ECLIPSE AT SUNRISE

At sunrise on May 21, 2012 the shore of eastern China will witness a rare annular solar eclipse. What makes the China location special is that the event will occur at sunrise giving observers a very strange sunrise. The sun will be eclipsed by the moon and a golden ring will hang over the eastern sky.

Tropical Sails Corp has been offering solar eclipse trips for 20 years, beginning with Baja in 1991. This will be our third adventure to China. Our national operator understands what is important to us. We have eliminated most required shopping. We had shortened some days to allow time to enjoy the hotel lobbies. Past customers raved about the hotels we used, but commented they had too little time to enjoy them.

Past customers suffered with the weather. A July and August solar eclipse led us deep into China at the wrong time of year. This time, the late spring should be great for our walking tours, bicycle rides, garden tours, and trekking to the top of the Great Wall.

The spring weather should lead to clear skies in the morning as typhoon season is two months away. Forget about the eclipse, and tour China and see incredible sites. Visit our website to view videos. Or better yet, order a free DVD from us with actual footage from previous treks.

SPECIAL ITINERARY OFFERS MORE OF WHAT YOU WANT TO SEE AND DO.

Tropical Sails Corp has organized this tour to do away with some of the frustration of typical China tours.

Required shopping has been reduced to just two stops. The pearl outlet in Beijing and the silk factory. Past customers enjoyed the silk factory. They hated the jade factory, so it is gone. The Beijing local insisted on one stop at the pearl factory. It is to take no longer than an hour. Then on to Yaxiu, where you can buy anything you need to keep you very happy. Many past customers bought suits, dresses, electronics, tripods, etc.

We added optional low impact bicycle rides, walks and fun activities past customers enjoyed. We included the entertainment people liked.

Dominating the north side of the square is the massive red Tian’anmen Gate through which you will pass into the fabled Forbidden City and another age, where you will be shown the home to the members of the royal family and their court in China's Ming and Qing Dynasties. It is the largest, the most intact and well-protected palace complex in China and in the world as well. During the past 500 years since its completion in 1420, it had been used by the two feudal dynasties of Ming and Qing with 24 emperors to rule over the country from here. The revolution of 1911 led by Dr Sun Yat-sen put an end to the feudal rule of the Qing in China. The Forbidden City was opened to visitors in 1925. After 1949, the Imperial Palace has undergone renovations part by part, thereby presenting a completely new feature. Covering an area of 720,000 square meters (about 250 acres) it has a floor space totaling around 155,000 square meters with more than 890 palace buildings containing over 9,000 rooms of various sizes. Housed in the palace museum are many historical and cultural relics as well as precious works of art. It is the largest museum of culture and art in China. Then visit the imposing Temple of Heaven where the Emperor came each year to intercede with the Gods for a good and plentiful harvest. People can tell where they are in the zoo by the unique appearance of their hall. There is plenty of bamboo, the favorite food of the cute panda. In the hall, the lush bushes and bamboo make the place similar to the wild habitat of the giant panda, in southwest China. Later you will visit Yonghe Lama Temple which is the largest and most perfectly preserved lamasery in present day China. Built initially in 1694 during the Qing Dynasty, this building was the residence of Emperor Yongzheng when he was just a prince. sery became the national center of Lama administration. In the afternoon you will make Hutong (Old lane) Tour by Rickshaw, and visit Beihai Park, which is a popular park with a total area of over 68 hectares, half of it is a lake.
